Public Letter to Extraterrestrials

If the standard-bearers of democracy and freedom can kill in the name of life and wage war in the name of peace, you, dear aliens, can also mask your genocides with the same pretexts, that you will not be doing anything that the owners of the market are not doing with too much insistence and impunity.

Dear aliens. I don't know if this umpteenth letter I'm sending you will finally reach your flying saucer but, if it does, please consider my request and act accordingly. Needless to say, I don't care about your disgusting viscosity or your disgusting green scales, because I know too many humans who, even if they look better than you, are much more nauseating.

Nor do they have to convince me, if they dare to invade us, that their evil purposes are worthy of respect, for I also know of virtuous human intentions more repulsive than theirs. I just want you to know that if you attack our planet, I place myself at your disposal and in a selfless way, without the need for you to justify yourself in your sacred right to defend yourself, that your bombings are humanitarian, that you are going to kill in due proportions and that your genocide conforms to international law.

I encourage you to proceed as soon as possible and not to be afraid of possible collateral damage when you apply your prophylactic cleansing with divine precision (grass cutting, you can call it). Remember that the end justifies the means.

If the standard-bearers of democracy and freedom can kill in the name of life and wage war in the name of peace, you, dear aliens, can also mask your genocides with the same pretexts, that you will not be doing anything that the owners of the market are not doing with too much insistence and impunity.

I do beg you, for when you decide to drop your ships on this planet, to do the job well, to leave nothing for the next day and, if possible, to begin your "Rats of the Earth" operation for Israel, to leave no stone upon stone, not even the wailing of your walls, that they raze everything, that they pulverize that criminal government and, incidentally, that they also take away the White House, NATO, the Stock Exchange, the World Bank, the IMF... Thanking them for their attention, he kisses their scales or whatever they have. Koldo
