Suicide blast rocks Logar province in eastern Afghanistan

February 24, 2013

A heavy explosion rocked eastern Logar province of Afghanistan early Sunday morning after a suicide bomber detonated his explosives in the central city of Pul-e-Alam.

According to local security officials the incident took place near a dormitory used by Afghan police officers. At least one police officer has been killed and two others have been wounded following the blast.

In the meantime Raess Khan, provincial security chief for Logar province said the incident took place in Kolangar area at the central city of Logar province.

He said the explosion took place near a security check post after a vehicle packed with explosives was detonated.

Mr. Khan also added that civilians did not suffer any casualties following the blast.

No group including the Taliban militants has so far claimed responsibility behind the incident.
