Syria: The shocking truth incriminates the USA

Timothy Bancroft-Hinchey

9/1/2013

US-backed terrorists firing chemical weapons in Syria

Luckily for President Obama, President Putin is an experienced politician, a seasoned diplomat, an honest statesman and a responsible player of the international community who does not spend his time cavorting with terrorists to destabilize countries and who does not stage false flag operations with his special forces to create excuses for war.

Luckily for President Obama, President Putin was astute enough to provide him with a ladder to start climbing down after a pathetic display of sabre-rattling more befitting of a ten-year-old squeaking threats from a tree-top at his neighbor before running inside sniveling to mommy upon being stung by a wasp.

However this is not a laughing matter and the more we look, the more we see the dark cloud looming on the horizon, a cloud which incriminates the Obama regime in Washington as it promises to uncover the lies, skullduggery and sheer dishonesty behind the failed campaign to attack Syria... because the policy to back the Syrian opposition terrorists was failing.

Firstly let us take a look at the "evidence" Obama and Kerry were peddling. For a start, John Kerry makes his mark under Peter's Principle as a failed Presidential candidate. As a diplomat and statesman, as US Secretary of State, he is either an incompetent jackass or else he is a barefaced, blatant liar, either case rendering him totally unfit for the job.

One of the photos he was waving around as evidence to incriminate President Al-Assad was taken in Iraq in 2003. Remember Colin Powell's lies? It seems to be a question of which US Secretary of State can lie the most.

Secondly let us examine the photographic evidence being used by Obama to underline his failed military strike campaign. The United Nations Human Rights Council has apparently confirmed what Russia has been saying all along, that videos and photographs apparently showing victims of a chemical attack in Ghouta on August 21 were fabricated. International experts had presented their evidence to the XXIV Session of the UN Human Rights Council in Geneva on September 9.

The same evidence has confirmed suspicions that the ones using chemical weapons that night were indeed the terrorists supported by the West.

Thirdly, the USA was made aware in 2012 by the Iranian Foreign Ministry that the Syrian terrorists were in possession of chemical weapons, so John Kerry's statement they were not is another blatant lie. There are also photographs of the western-backed Syrian terrorists firing such weaponry from artillery pieces.

Fourthly, and here is the bombshell, reports of hacked emails supposedly sent among US military officials show that the USA was not only aware of, but possibly privy to, such chemical weapons strikes, which were described as a "successful operation" and which apparently reveal that the video evidence of children was staged by US intelligence.

Fifthly, Obama hid behind these images of children, so where are the images of Syrian soldiers caught up in this attack and where are the images of the Syrian rescue services caught up in this attack? What would US firefighters think if someone armed terrorists and instigated an attack against them?

Sixthly, Obama's claims that this is the first use of chemical weapons this century is baloney. The first use of chemical weapons was in Kosovo and later, on a massive scale, Iraq. The horrific birth defects centred on Fallujah General Hospital and other hospitals especially in Anbar Governorate, apart from other regions in Iraq, have been exposed in a recent campaign launched by Dr. Samira Alaani, a pediatrician, who reveals that for every 1,000 live births in Iraq there are 144 babies born with deformities. The problem is growing worse as time goes on. She calls for the research undertaken by the Iraqi Health Ministry and the World Health organization to be released. It was promised at the beginning of 2013. It is now September 12. Where is it?

Seventhly, why did the Syrian "Revolution" begin exactly when the huge natural gas field was destroyed off Syria's coast?

Eighthly why does the Islamic cleric who launched this revolution in Dera'a now live in Benghazi, Libya?

Ninthly, several movements have been launched for the Nobel Peace Prize to be taken away from President Obama who since he received it has launched his forces illegally into Libya, which was an act of intrusion forbidden under international law, he has increased the number of murderous cowardly drone strikes, Guantanamo Bay concentration and torture camp remains operating despite his lies and now in Syria the USA is unanimous with supporting Islamist terrorists.

Moral: President Obama does not have a leg to stand on in his neo-conservative elitist dream to take Syria by force and install a US-friendly regime to give the USA control over the country's resources before the upcoming attacks against Lebanon and Iran.
