Afghanistan signs strategic cooperation agreement with Turkey

October 18, 2014

Afghanistan and Turkey signed the strategic cooperation agreement during Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan's visit to Kabul on Saturday.

The strategic cooperation agreement signed by the leaders of the two nations focuses economic development, including agriculture, mining, transport, construction and improvement of small and medium enterprises.

A commission will be formed for the implementation of the strategic cooperation agreement Kabul and Istanbul where the presidents of the two nations will have annual meetings regarding the progress of the projects.

President Ashraf Ghani Ahamdzai said the signing of the agreement paves the way for a long term cooperation between the two nations.

President Ghani further added that Turkey will assist the Afghan government to connect Afghanistan with Turkey through Turkmenistan and Caspian sea, besides supporting Afghanistan to develop a better aviation administration.

In the meantime, Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan said Turkey remains committed to assist in maintaining peace and stability in Afghanistan and the region.
