Army's intelligence chief visits Afghanistan

1/16/2009

Indian Army's intelligence chief visited Afghanistan in an effort to assess Afghan military capability to manage their nation's security with the NATO forces already working on their pull out plan.

"Director General of Military Intelligence Lt Gen R K Loomba was in Afghanistan last week to meet officers of the Afghan National Army (ANA) and International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) of the NATO countries," an Army officer said today.

Loomba made the quiet trip to Kabul and visited ANA headquarters, where he met senior officers and also held talks with ISAF commanders, they said here.

The visit comes in the wake of the US announcing "a surge and exit policy" beginning 2011 for Afghanistan, which has witnessed the war on terror against al-Qeada and the Taliban for over eight years following the 9/11 terror attacks.
