Red Sea, the second front

Sources: Rebellion

The conflict in Gaza that opened up after Hamas' armed incursion on October 7, an operation that clumsily provided excuses for the overflowing Zionist response, seems to be further and further away from abating.

It is in this context, where the extermination of Palestine has been in full swing since the beginning of November, to the sound of its sarkha or war cry "God is great, death to America, death to Israel, curse on the Jews and victory of Islam", the Yemeni movement Ansarullah (supporters of God) popularly known as Houthis after the name of their founder, Hussein Badreddin al-Houthi, who was killed in 2004 and succeeded by his son Abdul Malik al-Houthi, is giving a forceful response in support of his Gazan brothers, attacking the boats that dare to transit the Red Sea, and particularly all those that are in any way linked to Israel.

Using drones, missiles and anti-ship ballistic missiles – the latter a truly astonishing novelty - operated from their territories, the Houthis have virtually closed the passage to and from the Suez Canal, a very high commercial traffic route with a fifteen percent of world trade. (See: Hurricanes south of the Red Sea.).

It is in this context and following Resolution 2722 (2024) of the United Nations Security Council (CoS), where the right to freedom of expression is defended. free navigation and condemns the Houthi attacks, less than twenty-four hours of that resolution, the United States, together with a group of addicted nations (United Kingdom, Australia, Bahrain, Canada and the United States) Netherlands) attacked resistance positions Yemeni on the night of Thursday the 11th.

At least 60 targets were reportedly attacked in more than a dozen locations, including the nation's capital Sana'a, the port city of Hodeidah, and the cities of Saada and Dhamar, using U.S. Navy and Royal Air fighter jets Force, plus ship-launched Tomahawk cruise missiles unidentified.

It's important at this critical time for safety of the Middle East, and when it looks like it could be hurtling towards a great regional conflict, consider how quickly United Nations resolutions are implemented, as in this case, when it comes to resolving in favor of of U.S. interests or its allies, as opposed to when Israel is targeted for its historic abuses against the people has been allowed to disregard eighteen (18) United Nations resolutions on the occupation of Palestinian territory, for which it has never been subject to sanctions.

According to the U.S. command, Thursday's overnight attack included radar systems, air defense and storage sites, and launching for one-way attacks on unmanned aerial systems, cruise missiles and ballistic missiles, the number not yet known of Yemeni casualties that have occurred.

Mohammed Abdulsala, the spokesman for the Yemeni resistance, reported that after the attacks by the Western coalition, they responded with actions against ships stationed in the Red Sea and vowed that the movement will continue attacking ships heading to Israel.

Meanwhile, U.S. President Joe Biden is doubling down on He insists that he is willing to authorize new attacks on Yemen if the Houthi attacks do not stop. For its part, Iran, like the Lebanese movement Hezbollah, which since the beginning of the latter conflict has had rocketry duels with the Zionists, they condemned attacks on Yemen.

Since December, naval units of the coalition of 22 nations, most of them only in name, of the "Operation Guardian of Prosperity" (OGP), also led by the United States and whose mission has been to protect shipping, have been stationed in the Red Sea.

While the OGP, so far, has been limited to intercepting drones and missiles without carrying out offensive actions, after the endorsement of Resolution 2722 could change their actions.

A Vietnam on the Arabian Peninsula

With the attacks on Houthi positions, Biden risks that its Middle East policy, which aims to isolate Iran, end up not only shipwrecked, but even the creation of an unprecedented alliance of the Muslim world.

In addition to forcing Saudi Arabia, which has not only just formalize the re-establishment of diplomatic and trade relations with Tehran, but also puts peace negotiations with the Houthis at stake with a ceasefire agreement since 2022 to end the war that the Wahhabi kingdom next to the United Arab Emirates started in 2015.

After seven years of intense fighting, the Yemeni resistance not only was it able to contain Riyadh and its allies, who in one way or another were all the great armies of the West, as well as Jewish pilots and even Latin American mercenaries, but managed to go on the offensive by the continuity of the Saud family on the throne is at risk.

The Houthi movement, of Shiite origin to as well as Hezbollah and the Islamic Republic of Iran, although in the same way as Hezbollah and the Islamic Republic of Iran. Zaidism school, has managed to embark throughout its years of war on Sunni sectors and poor Christians by giving their The consistency that has covered him with a halo of invincibility. Denying this concrete reality, the U.S. Central Command issued a statement reporting that there is sufficient evidence to believe that the attacks on the Red Sea, beyond the fact that they were Houthi actions, are part of an overall strategy by Tehran, thus encouraging the constant the specter of a war against the nation of the ayatollahs that could include virtually the entire region.

A conflict of that magnitude would force Washington and its allies to allies to put troops on their feet in geographically very hostile territories, where, unlike the Vietnamese jungles, there are mountainous geographies at the Afghanistan-style, where Americans have not learned to move despite the fact that they are not able to of the twenty years of invasion.

The Houthis draw their tactics from different insurgencies such as the Vietcong, the guerrilla movements of the Americas and its Hezbollah brethren, so a war might not be not only be very long, but extremely bloody.

Beyond U.S. Threats and Casualties bombings, attacks on ships have continued and They seem to have no end. The Houthis have arranged for the creation of a second on the shores of the Red Sea, to the Zionist war against Palestine and They are not only an example that risks spreading, but an invitation for a new U.S. war failure.
