In Jerusalem, the "Conference for the Victory of Israel" threatens London and Washington

The "Israel Victory Conference - settlements bring security: Returning to the Gaza Strip and Northern Samaria » was no mere meeting of Jewish supremacists. A rabbi, sentenced in to life imprisonment for his crimes, spoke on behalf of the successors of the Stern group that assassinated British leaders in Mandate Palestine. It was a declaration of war against the Anglo-Saxons. By participating in this event, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu was threatening Washington and London. President Joe Biden immediately banned all fundraising and money transfers to these extremists. This is the first time that the United States has imposed sanctions against Israelis.

Rabbi Uzi Sharbaf, sentenced to life imprisonment in 1984, addresses thousands of Jewish supremacists.

ISRAEL VICTORY CONFERENCE

Two weeks ago, a star-studded celebratory event was held at Jerusalem's International Convention Center. It was entitled "Conference for Israel's Victory - settlements bring security: returning to the Gaza Strip and northern Samaria". 12 ministers, including Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, took part.

However, not a single political figure, not even the Minister of Security, Itamar Ben Gvir, was entitled to the frenzied ovations that greeted Rabbi Uzi Sharbaf, now a central figure in the Israeli debate, albeit unknown abroad. His presence rekindled in the participants hope of redeeming what they consider to be the "sin" of the withdrawal of Jewish settlements from Gaza in 2005.

In the hours that followed, Yaakov Margi (Shas), Minister of Welfare and Social Affairs, declared that his colleagues should have "thought" "before going to this circus.

The leader of the opposition, Yair Lapid, lamented that Benjamin Netanyahu, "who was once at the centre of the national camp being dragged aimlessly by extremists", has "hit rock bottom."

Gen. Benny Gantz, declared that the conference was "an insult to Israeli society in wartime. It undermines our legitimacy in the world and the efforts to create a framework for the return of our hostages." Commenting on the Prime Minister's participation, he continued: "He who dances and divides, does not decide, and he who is silent and allows himself to be dragged along, is not a leader".

A banner read: "Only a transfer [of Palestinians out of Gaza] can bring peace".
While a map shows the next Israeli cities in Gaza.

The next day, President Joe Biden, as if frightened by the return of an old demon, signed a decree banning some extremist settlers from coming to the United States, and, above all, banning all fund-raising and money transfers to Rabbi Uzi Sharbat's men. These sanctions apply not only in the United States, but also in all foreign banks with interests in the United States, i.e., ultimately in the whole of the West [1].

What's more, the Biden Administration, which until now has discreetly supported the massacre in Gaza by supplying shells and other munitions, is suddenly looking for a way out of the crisis. Secretary of State Antony Blinken set off on a new tour of the region's capitals, this time with proposals.

Why then, did Rabbi Uzi Sharbat's outburst provoke such reactions? To understand why, we need to look back to 1922. Within the revisionist Zionist movement, there is in fact an even more fanatical group that did not hesitate to attack the Anglo-Saxons.

THE "STERN GANG"

The "Revisionist Zionists" are the followers of Vladimir Ze'ev Jabotinsky, a Ukrainian fascist who in 1922 formed an alliance with the Ukrainian "integral nationalists" of Symon Petlioura and Dmitro Dontsov against the Soviets. During this alliance, the "nationalists" massacred not only Ukrainian anarchists and Ukrainian Communists, but also tens of thousands of Ukrainian Jews. Refusing to explain his actions, Jabotinsky resigned from his position as director of the World Zionist Organization and founded the Alliance of Revisionist Zionists. He founded a paramilitary fascist formation in Italy, with the help of duce Benito Mussolini, the Betar.

At the end of Second World War, the "Revisionist Zionists" pursued their fascist dream, now without the help of their Italian counterparts. They disassociated themselves from the Jewish communal militia in Palestine, the Hagana, and created their own militia, the Irgun [2].

In a letter to the New York Times, Albert Einstein, Hannah Arendt and other Jewish personalities compared the Irgun to fascist and Nazi formations [3].

The Irgun itself gave rise to Lehi, known as the "Stern Group" according to the "Stern Gang" [4]. This group was directly linked to the Polish fascist government (Avraham Stern participated in the first version of the "Madagascar Plan"). Stern was arrested by the British along with the leaders of his group at the start of World War 2, but released when the Polish government reconstituted itself in exile in London. Lehi resumed contact with the Italian Fascists and proposed to the Nazis to help them expel European Jews to Palestine. After some hesitation, the Nazis refused. Lehi multiplied attacks on the British and left-wing Jews in the first two years of the war. Avraham Stern was shot and killed by a British CID officer in February 1942. Yitzhak Shamir, who assassinated his rivals, then reorganized Lehi.

LORD MOYNE ASSASSINATED

Ambushed On His Doorstep

From GRAHAM BEAMISH, 'Daily Sketch' Special Correspondent in Cairo

LORD MOYNE, Minister-Resident in the Middle East, was assassinated in Cairo yesterday, when he was hit by a stream of bullets fired by two young civilians in European clothes.

His Army chauffeur was killed outright, and the British Minister was shot in the throat and stomach.

Lord Moyne died in hospital about an hour after an operation for the removal of the bullets.

Assailants Saved From Lynching

The two assailants were stated by the Egyptian Government last night not to be Egyptians, and the first indication of their identity came from General Sir Bernard Paget, C-in-C. Middle East, who said they were Jews.

The assailants attempted to escape on motor-cycles, and as the pursuers opened fire, the fugitives were headed off by native peace-boys, who drove them into the kesh.

A great crowd immediately gathered, and it was only with the utmost difficulty that the police were able to prevent the men being lynched.

One of the men, who was wounded, had his clothes literally torn off by the enraged crowd.

Staggered To His House

The assailants were believed to have been secreted in the portico of Lord Moyne's house and rushed out firing revolvers when the Minister opened the door of his car to alight.

Lord Moyne staggered to the entrance of his home before he collapsed, but the driver of the car slumped over the steering wheel. Lord Moyne was given immediate first aid treatment in his home, but when it was seen that his condition was serious he was removed to the military hospital in the neighbourhood.

An official today indicated that the assailants had reached Lord Moyne's house at about 11.30 p.m. No explanation of the motive for the attack was offered last night, but it was considered to have had a political aim and not one directed against Lord Moyne personally.

The identity of the assailants, it is believed, will be revealed today when they will be charged.

British and Egyptian authorities are doing their best to discover who is behind the assassination, and it is strongly believed that the men were acting on instructions from others.

Refused Police Escort

Lord Moyne's car is a 1934 model, despite its age, and it is believed that it was questioned for several hours for several hours before it was allowed to go. It is believed that the car was questioned for several hours before it was allowed to go.

Germany A Peril Even In Defeat

—WARNS STALIN

MARSHAL STALIN last night warned the world that though the Allies were on the brink of victory, winning the war would not remove the German peril.

Germany, he said, was already launching a "third world war." Not only must the enemy be completely demobilised, but a special body, with powerful armed forces, must be set up to smother warfare without delay.

'Make War Impossible'

Celebrating the 27th anniversary of the October Revolution in a 45-minute speech in Moscow, Marshal Stalin said:

"The task remains not only of winning the war, but of making any aggression, new or impending, impossible for ever, at least for a long period."

After the defeat of Germany the will of course be directed against the Axis powers, but there is the danger that the will will be turned as elsewhere, for the Axis powers might and develop into a new aggression.

"A short period only—of years—must be allowed for Germany to overcome her defeat, and the will of the Axis powers must be broken before the preparations of the aggression nations before the present war—and Marshal Stalin included—can be made."

Troops Fight - Paddle In Westward

BRITISH troops, including the 15th Airborne Division, are being moved westward in the West. The troops are being moved westward in the West.

RAIL LINKS

ALLIED fighters opened up an intended attack on German communications from Arnhem to Cologne yesterday.

In addition to the railway yards at Arnhem and several towns to the north, they bombed the marshalling yards at Utrecht. Railway bridges to the north-western suburbs of Cologne were destroyed or damaged and the rail network of lines, around the city, was isolated.

Rail systems were also blasted south of Arnhem. Although the R.A.F. reported that the lines were up.

This is a big blow to German supplies in dealing with any situation which demands a quick switch of troops, said British correspondents at Allied Supreme H.Q. last night.

Coblentz Saturated

COBLENTZ, vital German traffic centre behind the Western front, was hit yesterday after a swift semi-circumference attack by Lancasters last night.

Following yesterday's attack, a heavy attack on Orléansville by 700 Hurricanes and Lancasters, the bombers had been over Germany within a few hours.

Another great daylight attack was made by more than 1,100 U.S. Fortresses and Liberators against the city, railway yards at Nemours and other points, and industrial plants near Dunkirk.

Heavy numbers and low altitudes are being used in the raid.

The Luftwaffe made only feeble attempts at interception, and the bombers shot down four planes in the raid.

Five bombers are missing from the Orléansville raid.

Americans To Demobilise With Britain

From ARTHUR MORLEY, 'Daily Sketch' Correspondent in New York

DEMOCRILIZATION of the British armed forces will be agreed with that of the United States, it was authoritatively reported yesterday.

British and American army and aeronautical organizations are negotiating plans.

The device is to regularize demobilization and the reconstruction of industry to prevent either British or American getting an unfair start over the other.

11 Miles to Rotterdam

It is estimated that at least 40,000 German troops escaped before the bridges were destroyed.

British and Polish troops of General Creasey's First Army have landed on the south bank of the Meuse, about 11 miles from Rotterdam, respectively.

American have pushed forward to the Meuse estuary at Hook's Vast, Dutch miles from Rotterdam.

TIMELY WORDS OF FAITH

They shall wither, and the whetstone shall take them away as stubble.

Isaiah, 40, 24.

In 1944 Lehi resumed its attacks on the British. It narrowly missed eliminating High Commissioner to Palestine, Harold MacMichael, but succeeded in assassinating the Colonial Minister, Lord Moyne.

The Stern Gang assassinated British political and military authorities in the attack on their headquarters at the King David Hotel.

David Ben Gourion, who remained loyal to the British, launched a Haganah campaign to stop the actions of the Irgun and Lehi. Many of their members were arrested. However, in 1945, Ben-Gurion secretly organized a reconciliation with the revisionist Zionists, the "Hebrew Revolt". This brief alliance did not last. Lehi organized the attack on the secretariat of the British government of Mandate Palestine and its military command, both located in the King David Hotel. It left 91 dead and 46 wounded. Lehi did not cease its terrorist activities with the arrest of Yitzhak Shamir. On the contrary, it extended its activities to London until the British withdrew from Palestine. After that, it targeted the Arabs, thus perpetrating the Deir Yassin massacre.

The Irgun and Lehi were eventually incorporated into the Israel Defense Forces with the unilateral proclamation of statehood. However, the United Nations sent the Swedish Count Folke Bernadotte to determine the borders of the two Jewish and Arab states. Yitzhak Shamir then organized his assassination [5]. Yehoshua Cohen executed him. At the same time, André Sérot, a French colonel in the Blue Helmets, was assassinated. Pierre Gâisset (grandfather of the author of this article) replaced him. The "revisionist Zionists" then changed their label and formed a new party, Héroul, with Menachem Begin as its chairman.

In 1952, Yehoshua Cohen founded the Sde Boker kibbutz. When, the following year, Prime Minister David ben Gurion joined this kibbutz, Yehoshua Cohen became his bodyguard.

Rabbi Uzi Sharbaf, star of the Conference for the Victory of Israel

THE "JEWISH UNDERGROUND"

There is no trace of the Stern Group thereafter. However, after the "Six-Day War" the Bloc of the Faithful (Gush Emunim) developed the idea that Yahweh had given all Palestine to the Jews. They not only had the right to occupy it, but a duty to do so, so that the continuation of prophecy be fulfilled. This movement developed around Rabbi Zvi Yehouda Kook. He taught that, while the first secular Israelis had begun the work, only the religious knew the direction and could finalize it.

It was in this context that Yehuda Etzion, son of a gang member, recreated the Stern group.

He used the same logo: a fist with two fingers raised. Its new name: the "Jewish Underground". After the Camp David Accords, signed in 1978 by ex-Muslim Brother Anwar Sadat and Zionist revisionist Menachem Begin, it formally organized itself. It opposed Israel's retrocession of Sinai to Egypt. It formed two cells. The first, led by Yehuda Etzion himself, was to destroy the Dome of the Rock in the center of the Al-Aqsa mosque, in order to rebuild the Temple of Jerusalem. The second was to spread terror among anti-colonial Arabs.

Rabbi Uzi Sharbaf was the leader of the "Jewish Underground". He was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1984 for his involvement in a series of murderous attacks on Palestinians. He was discreetly released in 1991 by two revisionist Zionists, President Chaim Herzog and Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

His presence and the thunderous welcome given to him by thousands of activists portends the return of Zionist terrorism against the Anglo-Saxons. Washington's reaction shows that, in its eyes, what it tolerates when Arabs are its victims must be condemned when it is threatened.
