Who are our friends & who are our foes (Poem)

As Gaza burns
We have come to learn,
Who are our friends and who are our foes?
We recognize them, from their heads to their toes,
If an apartheid state,
“Has a right to defend”,
And debating this right,
A historical wrong offends a few,
But killing the babies and maiming in thousands,
The innocent women and unarmed men,
Doesn't bring a frown,
On their democratic brows
And doesn't dent,
The freedom they invent,
A value common with their Zionist friends
And the massacre of babies
A mere collateral damage, of a war of defense
A pretence of making sense of nonsensical arguments
We need not know who the enemies are.
But those who make attempts to break,
The apartheid wall, hiding the lie: That
A colonial state has a right to defend,

The land it grabbed through the barrel of a gun,
From the natives to which it always belonged
They are the ones, our resolute friends.
